La Cueva: Lower Residential Walk

29 October 2026 | Tina Trout | 139 photographs in capture order

A field photo journey from the upper access area through the residential drainage corridor and toward the road. Click a photograph or its filename to open the original in Google Drive. GPS coordinates identify the camera location and are not surveyed culvert positions.

Photos 001-008: approach and road context. Photos 009-022: slash material, channel and adjacent road. Tina identifies the community water storage tank behind trees near the breach. A blue feature in the upper right of photo 015 may be the tank; identification in the photo is unconfirmed. Tina describes the slash pile as having previously held water and identifies the newly repaired road as an emergency access route.

Photos 023-047: channel entry, erosion and bank details. Photos 048-083: residential reach, drops, undercut banks, roots, and earlier reinforcement. People and dogs provide visual context, not measured scale.

Photos 084, 089, 091 and 093: large corrugated crossing, including the interior view. A line visible in the crossing was described on the recording as an electrical wire; its identity, ownership and safety need confirmation. Photos 094-105 show exposed cables and adjacent banks.

Photos 106-139: downstream banks, fence lines, road approach and road-edge erosion. Capture order includes backward views and does not by itself establish flow direction.

The recording begins after the opening photographs. Matching to spoken observations is approximate. The effect of the breach on flow velocity, condition of utilities and eligibility for emergency funding require site and technical review. Do not enter unstable banks or touch exposed lines.

Original files are preserved; only exact byte-for-byte duplicates were omitted. Approximate phone GPS accuracy is shown when present. Images of residences and infrastructure should be shared thoughtfully.
